Details of Membership

Membership shall be confined to individuals, partnerships, companies, or corporations engaged in the manufacture of goods for all engineering disciplines or otherwise engaged in engineering or allied trades or in consultative services connected with engineering manufacture as defined below:

Allied trades include those marketing raw materials or tools, machinery and equipment particularly designed for the engineering industry.

Consultative services shall include those who while not manufacturing themselves offer advice or a service directly connected with the manufacturing process and those who provide goods or services required by Members in the conduct of their business.

Annual Subscriptions are payable immediately upon election and then on an annual basis. The Articles of Association require three months notice to be given of the resignation of a member company accompanied by any subscription due.
